PCIA APPLAUDS LAUNCH OF THE ARIZONA WIRELESS ASSOCIATION

(CHANDLER, AZ - NOVEMBER 15, 2006) – The Arizona Wireless Association (AZWA) held its kickoff event, forming the twelfth state wireless association. John Stevens, Crown Castle, serves as the President of AZWA. The launch featured keynote speaker Michael Fitch, President & CEO, PCIA.

“PCIA is proud to support the State Wireless Association Program,” said PCIA President & CEO Michael Fitch in his remarks. “Each state wireless association is unique, representing local interests and priorities, and that’s the way it should be. State associations are real “grass roots” efforts—using volunteered time and relying on cooperation of people who work together in the industry.”

The Arizona Wireless Association launch featured over 135 attendees. For more information about the AZWA, please visit www.azwa.org. For more information about the State Wireless Associations Program please visit www.swaprogram.net.

About PCIA: PCIA – the Wireless Infrastructure Association, is the principal trade association representing the companies that make up the wireless telecommunications and broadcast infrastructure industry. PCIA’s members own and manage more than 65,000 telecommunications towers and antenna facilities that support analog, digital and broadcast services across the country.
